SHELL EXPLODES IN U. S. DEFENSE LINE NEAR FOREIGN AREA

Jap Reinforcements Ready To Renew Campaign

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24, (8:13 p. m.)—A shell exploded within the United States Marine Corps defense lines at the corner of Tongking and Macao Roads tonight as opposing forces carried on an intermittent battle just outside the international settlement as Japanese troops concentrated for a new sweeping offensive.

With the Japanese army strengthened to unprecedented proportions, a new drive to blast the Chinese out of their positions along the Chapel-Woosung front was imminent. Information received exclusively by International News Service revealed that the Kanazawa division of the Japanese army, totaling 15,000 men, had been landed secretly at Woosung early this morning.

The Uchunmya division, which comprises 13,000 men and includes a mixed brigade, was held aboard troopships in the Yangtze, ready to be landed at a moment's notice. Another Japanese army division, totaling 12,000 men, was believed ready to leave Tokyo for the scene of hostilities.

Pending launching of their new onslaught, Japanese troops harassed the Chinese positions in the vicinity of the North Station while Japanese airplanes carried out an offensive against the Chinese arsenal at Langhua.

Four planes, each carrying a full load of bombs, swept over the arsenal, dropping a steady rain of missiles for half an hour and then returning to their base for more ammunition. Extent of damage was not ascertained.

The Chinese guns at the North Station were strangely quiet, but machine gun and rifle fire from both Japanese and Chinese lines was heard in the Peoshan Road area.

Strong forces of Chinese troops were concentrated at Pootung, across the Whangpoo River from the international settlement. They were entrenched in fortified positions two miles from the Asiatic Petroleum Company's plant.

Conflicting reports were current here over the status of the opposing armies in Kiangwan, where since early Saturday the Japanese have been trying to dislodge the enemy as part of their carefully planned offensive.

Japanese military headquarters announced the village had been "completely occupied" by Japanese troops, but other information strongly indicated the Chinese were still holding their lines against the invaders.

Bombing of the Langhua arsenal, which is the largest arms and ammunition concentration point anywhere in China with the sole exception of the famous Mukden arsenal, threw the native city into a panic.

The Japanese bombers missed the arsenal building, however, despite the fact they dropped scores of bombs.

If the arsenal had been struck, widespread devastation would have doubtless resulted.

Long prepared for such an eventuality, the populace rushed into the street when the speedy Japanese planes appeared overhead, carrying bedding and boxes of belongings.

They fled in wild panic through the narrow streets of the city, bowing over native policemen who tried vainly to restore order. The

Within a week or ten days, the former army "buddies" expect to be back at Old Orchard Beach, Me., prepared to begin again a flight to Buenos Aires, a distance of 5,400 miles.

The heavily laden "ship," carrying a record load of 1022 gallons of gasoline, succeeded in reaching Cape Cod yesterday only to have cylinder trouble develop.

Welcomes Probe By Government After Brookhart Talk

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 24.—Will H. Hays, president of the motion picture producers and distributors of America, today replied to Senator Smith W. Brookhart's speech yesterday in the senate asking an investigation of the film industry.

Hays said: "From the press reports which reach me concerning a speech made by Senator Brookhart in Washington it is apparent that he chooses to reiterate the position he has taken for the last five years with regard to the motion picture industry and to rest his conclusions upon many untrue and distorted statements that have been published and repudiated from time to time.

"The motion picture industry has no objection, of course, to an inquiry, should the senate of the United States see fit to authorize it.

"No industry anywhere could conduct its business more frankly, open-and-above board than does ours. The things we do, the contracts we negotiate, the theaters we buy or sell and the artists we employ, are of public interest and generally noted in the newspapers of the world.

"There is no secret about anything we do in the motion picture industry. We engage in no activities, at any time, of any kind, which restrain anybody from doing business anywhere.

"Our job is to provide wholesome entertainment for our millions of patrons throughout the world.

"Our industry is quite willing to stand upon its efforts and its achievements."

Rejects State Appeal In Case Against Road House

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—The mere supplying of "set-ups" of ginger ale and cracked ice to drinkers is not a violation of the prohibition laws, the Ohio Supreme Court ruled today.

The decision affirmed an interpretation of the prohibition statutes handed down by the Summit County Appellate Court in the case of A. W. Smith, manager of the Ghent Road Inn, near Akron, who was arrested April 16 on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

The common pleas court at Akron found Smith guilty of aiding and abetting other persons to violate the dry laws. The appellate court, however, reversed the judgment. The case was carried to the supreme court by Prosecuting Attorney Don Isham.

The decision of the supreme court today in rejecting the appeal of the state, was a blow to dry law enthusiasts and various public officials, who have contended that proprietors of hotel, inns, cafes, restaurants or other public places supplying patrons with "the makings" violate the dry laws.

The ruling of the Summit County Appellate Court, which the supreme court affirmed today, stated that "where a guest, without the procurement of the proprietor of a restaurant, brings into said restaurant intoxicating liquor which he keeps in his exclusive personal possession, and the proprietor does not, or say, anything that either directly or indirectly assists in, or contributes to, or affects, such possession, said proprietor is not an aider or abettor in such possession, although he does not object to the drinking of such liquor by said guests and furnishes to him a drinking glass and ice and ginger ale for the purpose of facilitating the drinking of said liquor in said restaurant."

MOTHERHOOD CLAIM SUSPECTED AS PLOT TO OBTAIN LEGACY

Kidnaping Is Charged Against Woman In Cleveland Case

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 24.—An attractive young widow, who has alternately changed her story concerning the maternity of a foundling baby boy, discovered in a ramp of the terminal tower, was held by police today in a suspected plot to obtain a $30,000 legacy.

After a lengthy questioning, the woman, Mrs. Christine Smith, 29, was placed under a technical charge of kidnaping the baby, who was given the name of "Terry Tower" by attaches at St. Ann's Hospital after he was found in the downtown terminal building.

She was taken into custody here on the complaint of the claimants to the legacy residing in Buffalo who charged that Mrs. Smith was merely posing as the mother of the infant to obtain the money left in the estate of Godfried Smith.

Police revealed that Mrs. Smith came to the children's bureau a month ago and claimed the baby after "Terry" had been residing in the hospital since late in November.

Making her periodic visit to the policewoman's bureau yesterday Mrs. Smith was detained for questioning. She admitted that she was the mother of the boy, then denied it, and later maintained again that "Terry" was her son, police said.

Under provisions of the Godfried Smith estate, $30,000 was provided for any children from the marriage of his son, the late Dr. Chauncey Smith. The first wife of the son died and then he married Christine Niederter, who is the leading figure in the present drama.

SENATE COMMITTEE PROBES M'DERMOTT CHARGES ABOUT PEN

Refuses To Discuss Suicide Attempt; Says Air Bad

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Protests by Pat McDermott, celebrated convict, that Ohio Penitentiary is a tuberculosis trap, were to be inquired into here today by the state senate welfare investigating committee.

An appeal for "more air for the men" was made by McDermott, who was convicted as the hired gunman in the Editor Don R. Mellett murder when he was questioned yesterday.

The charge that atmospheric conditions in the prison are not good has previously been made to the committee.

No longer the surly character he was in 1926 when he was convicted of killing the crusading editor at Canton, McDermott talked politely and in a low voice.

Asked about his supposed hanging attempt last week, which has been branded as "faked" by Warden Preston E. Thomas, McDermott would not answer.

When Senator Roy J. Gillen (R) of Wellston, chairman, asked whether "it was because of something that was done to you by someone, or because you thought you didn't have a chance to get out of here," McDermott answered: "I'd rather pass that question up."

CONVICTED SLAYER TO BREAK SILENCE WHEN SENTENCE IS PASSED

OHIO DRYS SEEKING SENATE CANDIDATE TO OPPOSE BULKLEY

Claim Bettman "Too Liberal" Lewis Is Indifferent

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Dry of Ohio are searching almost frantically for a prohibitionist with whom to fight U. S. Senator J. Bulkley, wet Democrat, in his campaign for reelection, it was learned today.

The fear is spreading in the prohibition camp that the important position may go to the wets by default for failure of the drys to enter a man in the race.

Due to the reluctance of drys, regardless of party, to launch out against Bulkley, a movement to draft congressman C. Ellis Moore (R) of Cambridge was informally discussed by individual directors of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League here yesterday.

Conferences among dry leaders were held in which the problem was seriously pondered. Officially, the Anti-Saloon League had nothing to say. It was said to have been generally agreed, however, that Attorney General Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, who is expected to seek the Republican nomination, is "too liberal."

The deadline for filing petitions of candidacy is March 11. So far not a ripple of enthusiasm had been displayed by the drys.

Drys are especially anxious to win the senatorial race to back up their contention that Bulkley was not elected in 1930 because he was a wet, but because of economic conditions.

Besides, they have already declared that prohibition is to be the issue of the coming election. Serious embarrassment would result if they were unable to enter a candidate to battle for their side of the issue.

Former Lieutenant Governor Charles H. Lewis of Harpster and former U. S. Senator Roscoe McCulloch remain indifferent to suggestions that they become candidates for the Republican nomination. It is understood.

Following the meeting of directors here yesterday, Superintendent S. P. McNaught of the league distributed suggestions that the Literary Digest poll, showing wet tendencies in Ohio, will have any effect on the 1932 campaign.

Winnie Judd Names Man Accomplish In Trunk Killing

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 25.—Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "double trunk murderer," threatened to break her silence today when she is sentenced to hang.

A man, she declared, was an accomplice in the sensational murders of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were shipped in trunks to Los Angeles.

A jury found her guilty of the killing of Mrs. Leroi and decreed that she die on the gallows, a decree mandatory upon Judge Howard Speakman to pronounce.

Mrs. Judd did not take the witness stand in her own defense during the trial.

The sentence was to have been imposed yesterday but was delayed a day to allow state's attorneys to prepare arguments against a new trial demanded by Mrs. Judd's counsel.

Should Judge Speakman overrule the motion, sentencing of Mrs. Judd would be in order, and at that time Mrs. Judd declared a letter to her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, she "would tell all."

"The trial wasn't honest or fair," Mrs. Judd said. "I don't want to die. I insist that—be arrested before Judge Speakman sentences me. A new trial without new evidence would be a joke. . . . a motion was made to hang me early. They are afraid I'll tell everything."

Authorities declined to reveal the name of the man Mrs. Judd insisted should be arrested.

Among the announced aims of the organization is opposition to certain state air laws which the flyers claim are detrimental to the interests of aviation. The new union also declared it will aid the Air Line Pilots' Association in its fight for "decent wages."

Dismissal of the twenty-one Century pilots followed their threat to go on strike against a 40 per cent pay reduction.

NAVAL LIMITATION TREATIES AT STAKE STIMSON DECLARES

Disarmament Policy Stands Or Falls On Far East Policy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Inferentially charging Japan with willful violation of the nine power treaty, Secretary of State Stimson today declared that the policy of the open door must be maintained in China or the naval limitation agreements must be abrogated.

This declaration was made in a letter from Stimson to Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee in which he reiterated the policies of the United States in the Far East.

Stimson declared that the entire United States policy toward disarmament had been built upon the observance of the nine power treaty and maintenance of the open door in China. All the treaties signed at Washington were essentially based, he said, upon the solution of the various disturbing problems which were then threatening the peace in the Far East, and unless all of these treaties were simultaneously observed, all must fall by the wayside.

Stimson's letter, issued twelve hours after the Japanese government had declared in a note to the League of Nations that China could not be regarded as "an organized nation," was interpreted as the American answer in contradiction of that stand.

Regarding the delay in China's progress toward reorganization from an absolute monarchy to a republic, Stimson said: "The instability of her attempts to secure a responsible government were the very obstacles which the policy of the open door was designed to meet."

Stimson said he believed the present situation at Shanghai could have been avoided "had these covenants been faithfully observed, and no evidence has come to us to indicate that a due compliance with them would have interfered with the adequate protection of legitimate rights in China of the signatories of those treaties and their nationals."

Reviewing the events which led up to the signing of the nine power treaty at the Washington conference in 1922, Stimson said: "It must be remembered also that this treaty was one of several treaties and agreements entered into at the Washington conference by the various powers concerned, all of which were interrelated and interdependent."

"No one of these treaties can be disregarded without disturbing the general understanding and equilibrium which were intended to be accomplished and effected by the group of agreements arrived at in their entirety."

"The Washington conference was essentially a disarmament conference aimed to promote the possibility of peace in the world, not only through the cessation of competition in naval armaments, but also by the solution of various other disturbing problems which threatened the peace of the world particularly in the Far East."

"These problems were all interrelated. The willingness of the American government to surrender its then commanding lead in battleship construction and to leave its positions at Guam and in the Philippines without further fortification was predicated upon, among other things, the self denying covenants contained in the nine power treaty which assured the nations of the world not only

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 24.—An attractive young widow, who has alternately changed her story concerning the maternity of a foundling baby boy, discovered in a ramp of the terminal tower, was held by police today in a suspected plot to obtain a $30,000 legacy.

After a lengthy questioning, the woman, Mrs. Christine Smith, 29, was placed under a technical charge of kidnaping the baby, who was given the name of "Terry Tower" by attaches at St. Ann's Hospital after he was found in the downtown terminal building.

She was taken into custody here on the complaint of the claimants to the legacy residing in Buffalo who charged that Mrs. Smith was merely posing as the mother of the infant to obtain the money left in the estate of Godfried Smith.

Police revealed that Mrs. Smith came to the children's bureau a month ago and claimed the baby after "Terry" had been residing in the hospital since late in November.

Making her periodic visit to the policewoman's bureau yesterday Mrs. Smith was detained for questioning. She admitted that she was the mother of the boy, then denied it, and later maintained again that "Terry" was her son, police said.

Under provisions of the Godfried Smith estate, $30,000 was provided for any children from the marriage of his son, the late Dr. Godfrey Smith. The first wife of the son died and then he married Christine Niederster, who is the leading figure in the present drama.

SENATE COMMITTEE PROBES M'DERMOTT CHARGES ABOUT PEN

Refuses To Discuss Suicide Attempt; Says Air Bad

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Protests by Pat McDermott, celebrated convict, that Ohio Penitentiary is a tuberculosis trap, were to be inquired into here today by the state senate welfare investigating committee.

An appeal for "more air for the men" was made by McDermott, who was convicted as the hired gunman in the Editor Don R. Mellett murder when he was questioned yesterday.

The charge that atmospheric conditions in the prison are not good has previously been made to the committee.

No longer the surly character he was in 1926 when he was convicted of killing the crusading editor at Canton, McDermott talked politely and in a low voice.

Asked about his supposed hanging attempt last week, which has been branded as "faked" by Warden Preston E. Thomas, McDermott would not answer.

When Senator Roy J. Gillen (R) of Wellston, chairman, asked whether "it was because of something that was done to you by someone, or because you thought you didn't have a chance to get out of here," McDermott answered: "I'd rather pass that question up."

CONVICTED SLAYER TO BREAK SILENCE WHEN SENTENCE IS PASSED

Winnie Judd Names Man Accomplice In Trunk Killing

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 25.—Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "double trunk murderer," threatened to break her silence today when she is sentenced to hang.

A man, she declared, was an accomplice in the sensational murders of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were shipped in trunks to Los Angeles.

A jury found her guilty of the killing of Mrs. Leroi and decreed that she die on the gallows, a decree mandatory upon Judge Howard Speakman to pronounce.

Mrs. Judd did not take the witness stand in her own defense during the trial.

The sentence was to have been imposed yesterday but was delayed a day to allow state's attorneys to prepare arguments against a new trial demanded by Mrs. Judd's counsel.

Should Judge Speakman overrule the motion, sentencing of Mrs. Judd would be in order, and at that time Mrs. Judd declared a letter to her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, she "would tell all."

"The trial wasn't honest or fair," Mrs. Judd said. "I don't want to die. I insist that—be arrested before Judge Speakman sentences me. A new trial without new evidence would be a joke... a motion was made to hang me early. They are afraid I'll tell everything."

Authorities declined to reveal the name of the man Mrs. Judd insisted should be arrested.

DESCENDANT OF AIDE-DE-CAMP WHO SERVED WASHINGTON LIVES NEAR HERE

INTERESTING stories of George Washington, whose bi-centennial is being celebrated this year, are recalled by Mrs. Charles Secrist, Wilmington Pike, and one-half miles south of Xenia, who is a great-great-granddaughter of George H. Gall, who served as an aide-de-camp to the Revolutionary War general.

Mrs. Secrist recalls hearing many incidents concerning Washington from her grandfather and her great uncle. One concerns a night when Washington and his army were on the battle field. Washington asked Gall to sing but after a few minutes said: "I'd rather meet the enemy than listen to that voice of yours."

Washington's aide-de-camp is now buried in a small country cemetery between Marshall and Sinking Springs, in Highland County. His grave was marked a few years ago.

A musket, powder horn, knife, sword, Bible, a pair of boots and other smaller relics, carried by Gall during the time he served under Washington, are now in possession of members of Mrs. Secrist's family. Manuscript for a book, "The Washington I Knew," started by Gall but never finished, is also in possession of the family.

A number of other direct descendants of Gall live in Ohio but Mrs. Secrist is the only member of the family near here.

Delightful Program Is Offered By Club

Music lovers of Xenia were afforded an unusual treat Tuesday evening when the Xenia Woman's Music Club, assisted by guest musicians, presented a program of grand and light opera numbers.

Club members and their guests were served dinner in the cafeteria of Central High School and then retired to Jean B. Elwell Auditorium for the program. Mrs. Graham Bryson, as chairman, announced the numbers.

As a tribute to George Washington the orchestra opened the program with selections from "My Maryland," by Romberg. This was followed by the dancing of the minut by a group of pupils from McKinley School namely: Betty Loyd, Dorothy Coy, Miriam Geyer, Helen Spiro, Louis Huston, Billy Jacobs, Jack Manor and Richard Loveless. Jean Tilford read "When Grandma Danced the Minuet" and Doris Reed played the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Foy Coffelt, supported by the chorus, presented "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier," by Strauss, making a splendid opening vocal number. Selections from the same musical comedy were played by the orchestra.

A Chinese scene with numbers from "East is West" was the colorful and gratifying offering of Mrs. William Cherry and Mrs. William Anderson—"Ming Foy" enacted by Mrs. Cherry and the American lover by Mrs. Anderson. Mesdames Willard Bennington, John Davidson, Arthur Perrill and Alice Ruthrauff and Miss Elizabeth Ankeney in gay costumes, added to the picture.

The orchestra then played selections from "Carmen," by Bizet, and this was followed by a delightful number, "Seguidilla," sung by Mrs. Lawrence Shields. This was followed by a Spanish dance with Miss Juanita Rankin assisting as the gallant cavalier and Mrs. Richard McClelland playing the silent but effective role of the rejected suitor.

Mrs. John Watkins, assisted by a concealed chorus, sang the lovely "You Are My Dream of Love" from "Blossom Time," by Schubert. Gounod's opera, "Romeo and Juliet" was represented by the "Waltz Song," the choice of a guest soloist, Miss Dorothy Oglesbee, of Cedarville. Miss Oglesbee made a beautiful "Juliet" and sang with delicacy and charm. The "Seven-ade" from Romberg's "Student Prince" was the next offering of the orchestra.

A temporary departure from opera was made when Paul Lincke's popular "Glow Worm" was sung by Mrs. Allen Swinnerton, assisted by Mrs. Coffelt and chorus. A varicolored lighting effect added to the charm of this number.

"Brother Come and Dance With Me" was the rollicking and playful song and dance presented from the children's opera, "Hansel and Gretel" by Huperdick. "Hansel" was portrayed by Miss Helen Wike and "Gretel" by Miss Juanita Rankin. Three selections from the comical "Patience" by Gilbert and Sullivan, were offered by Miss Dorothy Eaton and Mr. Cleveland Thomas, of Antioch College. "One Alone," from Romberg's "Desert Song," featuring muted strings, later joined by full brass, made an admirable incidental presentation by the orchestra.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell made an attractive Indian in the "Indian Love Call" from Hammerstein's "Rose Marie." Richard Wagner, the masterful operatic composer, was represented in the two closing numbers, the orchestra playing the beautiful "Evening Star" from "Lannhauser," followed by the chorus singing "The Spinning Song" from "The Flying Dutchman." The chorus was under the direction of Mrs. William McGervey. Members of the chorus were Mrs. Foy Coffelt, Mrs. John Davidson, Mrs. Raymond Wolf, Mrs. Steele Poague, Mrs. David Croy, Miss Ruth Alexander, Miss Emma LeMar, Miss Dorothy Devoe and Miss Bertha McCarty.

Accompaniments for the various vocal and dance numbers were played by Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Ruthrauff, Mrs. Ava Champney, Miss Rankin, Miss Marjorie Street, pianists, Mrs. Louis Hammerie, violin and Miss Lois Street 'cello.

High tribute must be paid to the inspiring pit orchestra of fourteen pieces under the competent and artistic direction of Mr. Harold E. Seall. All too rare are the appearances in Xenia of such an organization but the ready and spirited applause of the audience left no doubt as to its appreciation. It is hoped that some enterprising persons may unite in supporting a permanent orchestra to enrich the musical life of the city. Members of the orchestra were Mrs. Louis Hammerie, Miss Christine Williams, Miss Lucy Stout violins; Miss Marjorie Street, piano; Miss Lois Street, cello, who are members of the music club; Mr. Marcus Shoup and Mr. Herman Wittman, violins; Miss Helen McElwain, flute; Mr. George Gates and Mr. Roger Pagett, trumpets; Mr. J. MEMBERS OF "GREEN PASTURES" TROUP VISIT WILBERFORCE

Arriving at Wilberforce University in automobiles from Columbus Tuesday noon a party of men and women who are players in "Green Pastures" were guests of the Music Department, and at 1 o'clock were greeted with a packed house in the auditorium of Galloway Hall when a short impromptu program was given.

Many visitors were present from Xenia, Dayton and Springfield who took advantage of the occasion to meet and hear the actors.

Charles Saulsbury of the Music Department, who is personally acquainted with a number of the players, sponsored the trip.

The visitors were guests at a luncheon given by C. C. Jenkins, business manager of the C. N. L. Department in the dining room of the Home Economics Building at which Miss J. Brassfield acted as the hostess, assisted by the young women of the department.

After luncheon the party was received by President Gilbert H. Jones and J. E. Newsome, assistant to the superintendent, Miss Hallie Q. Brown and other members of the faculty.

At one o'clock a short program was given under the direction of Cecil McNair, director and manager of the company. Mr. McNair said it is the policy of the company to visit all Negro colleges when possible to inspire young men and women endowed with musical talent to prepare themselves to fill positions now open in leading companies, not only in plays like "Green Pastures" but in movies.

The first number on the program was given by the "Whispering Trio," singing "An Unfriendly World" and "The Old Rocking Chair."

Dan Williams, one of the leading characters in "Green Pastures," gave a short talk on the history of the play.

Miss Geraldine Gooding, another well known figure in recent plays, sang "Lift Up Mine Eyes." Miss Meel Gilbert gave a monologue, entitled, "I Am Glad I Ain't No Hand To Talk." The other numbers on the program were parts from different scenes of the play. Three young boys appearing as Sunday School children in the play, gave several exhibitions of dancinb which brought an outburst of applause.

After the engagement in Columbus the company leaves Saturday night for St. Louis, Mo., for a week's engagement, thence to California to remain until the early part of June when the company will appear in New England cities.

JAPS - CHINESE

The gallant defense put up by the Chinese along the Chapel-Woosung front in the battle of Shanghai may have crumbled before these words are read. The conclusion seems foregone that the Japanese will blast the Chinese out of their positions. The Chinese might then retire and re-form their line. There would be no disgrace in that. A new China has proved to the world that it can fight.

At the same time it is premature to talk about Japanese arms having lost prestige because of their inability to overcome Chinese resistance in three weeks. The Chinese have had the advantage of greatly superior numbers, with their right protected by the Settlement at Shanghai, and their left resting on the forts at Woosung. They have dug themselves in on a familiar and difficult terrain. The mistake of believing that a small force of Japanese marines could be landed in Hongkew and Chapel to protect Japanese subjects, without the Chinese resisting it, was presumably made in Tokio. The Japanese are fighting as well as they ever did.

The prestige Japanese arms are supposed to have lost at Shanghai was gained in the Russo-Japanese War. Yet in the first stage of that war General Nogi lost 15,000 men in three weeks, vainly attempting to take 203-Meter Hill at Port Arthur; but in the end he attained his objective. The Japanese have not lost prestige. What has happened is that the Chinese have gained prestige. They surprised the world in 1914 by allowing the Japanese to go through them like a knife through cheese. They have surprised it again during the past few weeks by slowing up a Japanese invasion. China has learned a lot in the last 38 years. Japan has not yet shown that it has forgotten anything, as far as fighting goes. Any other verdict at this stage of the battle of Shanghai would be dangerous.

A LONG SETBACK FOR SHORTS

In laying down the rule that brokers must obtain the expressed consent of customers before lending their stock to a short seller, the New York Stock Exchange has bowed to the public clamor that steps should be taken to curb the more notorious abuses associated with short selling. The handwriting was on the wall. If the exchange had done nothing, as seemed likely from the series of defenses put out by its president, Mr. Richard Whitney, it was very probable that the Federal Government would have repaired the omission, and instituted a much more radical restriction than might have seemed desirable.

What exactly does the new rule mean? The ramifications are pretty involved. Let us say there are two speculators, A and B, one a buyer on margin and the other a short seller. Speculator A gives an order to his broker to buy a certain stock. Since he is not buying it outright, but has to rely on his broker to borrow part of the money for him, the stock remains in the possession of the broker. Speculator B comes along with an order to sell the same stock short.

Now a short sale is a transaction in which the seller contracts to deliver a specified number of shares at a price set at the time of the short sale. Until he "covers" or buys the stock in, he must borrow the shares for delivery, as the buyer clearly cannot be kept waiting. So Speculator B applies to the broker who has so many shares on hand which his customers have bought on margin. And he borrows the scrip until he has made his purchase, when the borrowed paper is replaced with the new.

This procedure can mean only one thing. Speculator A, who buys on margin in the expectation that his bought shares, for which he has put up real money, will rise in price, finds that this very paper is being used by Speculator B, who has only borrowed it, to beat down the price. It may indeed happen that the club is wielded so effectively that Speculator A is compelled to throw his scrip overboard at panic prices. If ever there was a ridiculous situation, here it is, and the fact that it has been tolerated for so long may be counted among the world's wonders.

For it is not only the loss suffered by Speculator A that must be considered, but the depreciation of investors' holdings and, even more important, the damage done to credit and to confidence throughout the business structure.

But many people who admit the grave abuses connected with short selling have been chary about admitting the wisdom of what is often said to be the next step—namely government regulation. The two admissions do not necessarily go together. Government regulation has put many lines of economic endeavor in a strait-jacket and has kept them so confined long after the reason for the initial discipline has disappeared. Nothing can take the place of self-discipline.

Hence the action of the stock exchange is a step in the right direction taken by those who ought to take it. It will automatically rule out perhaps half of the short selling. To that extent it will protect the holdings of legitimate investors equally with those of margin speculators against the hammer of short selling. — Christian Science Monitor.

Prohibition Dominating Factor

By MRS. BELLE I. MOSKOWITZ

Social Service Worker and Adviser to Alfred E. Smith

(Mrs. Belle I. Moskowitz was born in New York City, October 5, 1877. She was a director of the amusements and exhibitions of the Educational Alliance from 1900 to 1903. She was a member of the staff of The Survey in 1903 and field secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America in 1912. Mrs. Moskowitz was secretary of the New York State Reconstruction Commission in 1919, and was secretary of the governor's labor board in 1921. She was vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and has been confidential political adviser to former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, who again is mentioned as a presidential candidate.)

Through economic conditions, and the enactments of congress to correct existing difficulties, may alter greatly the outlook between now and convention time, nothing, in my opinion, can possibly abate the importance of the prohibition issue.

The people will vote, not only for the party which provides the best economic solution for our problems, but with the party which has taken the soundest stand on the prohibition issue.

I consider that the most vital social and economic issue before the American people.

We have invested millions in trying to enforce the unenforceable. We have an outlaw industry which is making people tremendously rich and doing so without producing any revenue for the government. The moral effect of prohibition upon our young people and upon crime makes it a major social issue. It will probably be foremost, certainly in the mind of the average man.

I look upon the American electorate of 1932 as the most consciously intelligent in the nation's history, thanks to the radio, which has enabled every little farm house to get an idea of issues and problems in government and partisan politics.

I do not believe that unemployment insurance should be the concern of federal authorities, except as the government at Washington assists in formulation of such programs by the various states. I do not, however, hold the federal government above consideration of emergency relief measures for meeting the needs of the people.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—People and Things: Harlem is creeping downtown. I have mentioned the sepias shows of Greenwich Village. The Strollers, in West Fifty-first street, just off Broadway, offers a colored floor show and a dinner of fried chicken and yams.

The New Yorker hotel has installed individual radios in the kitchens so that chefs can relay orders to the loves in a Bing Crosby croon instead of shouting them.

Roseland, the taxi dance hall, likes brunets when picking the young men provided as dance companions for lonely ladies. Few feminine patrons come in alone. It's usually a case of an odd girl on a party when the "hosts" are called into service.

Anita Murray, debutante daughter of the socially important Hugh E. Murray, appeared for the first time on the stage in "Collison," produced by Lew Gensler. She's 18, beautiful, and being educated for grand opera.

Leon Gordon, the artist, tells me that if he could pick the attributes of a young painter, he'd give him consummate craftsmanship first—and let the fire of inspiration take care of its own lighting.

PARAGRAPHS FROM LITTLE BEBE DANCERS. In the east between pictures for a radio singing engagement, wears red more spectacularly than anybody I can think of. Her coat trimmed in red fox explodes pleasantly upon the eye. She's slimmer and full of extravagant enthusiasm for life.

Russell Patterson is now judging his 18th beauty contest. "Ziegfeld and Carroll are all wet!" he insists. "The artists have the right idea about what a girl should look like. Down with make-up and trick lighting! Put a girl in a tub and scrub her. If she's still beautiful, then she's really beautiful!"

Iceland, the skating emporium, has an odd inevitable appeal for visiting southerners. When you hear a large thump it's usually a Louisiana learning how—but not this Louisiana!

Barbara Newberry, the girl Ziegfeld said had the most beautiful legs in the world, met her husband, Eddie Foy, Jr., at a penthouse party the other night and decided he was a mighty nice guy, after all.

Minor Thrills: A lovely lady to whom I was complaining about the current vogue of red finger-nails confessed to me that her toes were tipped in bright blue!

PROMOTION WORK. Perhaps you've noticed the series of articles running in several magazines describing the adventures in Wall Street of daring "bears" and "bulls"—calculated to make stock and bond buying seem romantic and glamorous, induce readers to reinvest the contents of their socks and mattresses and speed recovery thereby. One of the shrewdest of anti-depression moves.

And while we're on the subject, a clerk in one of the Fourteenth Street cut-price haberdasheries tells me that an increasing number of those large-size dollar bills, long since obsolete at the treasury, are drifting back into circulation—and some of them look brand-new!

CRITIC. The gentleman across the aisle from me the other night at a particularly inane opening chanced to be Mr. Percy Fennell, the well-known drama critic. Near the end of the second act I noticed that he was fidgeting in boredom. The play was almost unbelievably soporific. Mr. George Jean Nathan had long since departed and the other critics had followed him one by one.

Finally a brief survey revealed the fact that Hammond was the last of his tribe to remain. He was alone and not nailed down by a party as I was, and I wondered why he didn't sink away. Finally, liberated by the final curtain, I noticed that he was still in his seat. And I saw the reason why. He was asleep!

GESTURE. In "Weep No More," Ward Greene's new, best-selling novel, considerable mention is made of a village speakeasy for which he picked a characteristic name—Leo's. Now, my spies maintain, there are two such emporiums in the neighborhood described, and in both a new cocktail has been introduced, called the "Weep No More."

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP. According to Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., it's bad form to thank your hostess at a party; you must drop by next day and leave a card. —If you're able to be out.... The prize racket of the season was contrived by that telescope concessionaire who turned his lens on a room where Greta Garbo was supposed to be ensconced here, and charged a quarter for a peek at a double he had hired to walk back and forth in front of the window.

Two new mags, both claiming "Bunk" for title, are scrapping over the label.... Lon Chaney still gets fan mail—more than many a name the press agents are pumping.... Helen Morgan had to stop singing for a week, after three hours on horseback. As what noise wouldn't? A drug store in Lexington avenue serves afternoon tea gratis....

NEWS NOTE: "PRESIDENT DISCONTINUES HAND-SHAKING CUSTOM."

"MOST-FAVORED-NATION SYSTEM" HAS CHANGED WORLD IMPORT PLAN

By ARTHUR L. JENKINS
Editor, The Evening Journal
Written for Central Press

The newest stunt of the importing nations of Europe is to impose "quotas" on the exporting countries who are trying to sell their products abroad.

The old idea was for Country A to put a tariff duty of a certain amount on imports from Country B, and a duty twice as big on imports from Country C, thus giving the advantage to Country B. That practically came to an end when they began making trade treaties with the "most-favored-nation clause" in them, meaning that Country C was thereafter to get whatever was the lowest rate that Country A allowed to anybody.

All or nearly all the treaties we have with foreign nations call for "most-favored-nation" treatment, and it has done a good job for us in the past.

But this new quota system makes a totally new line-up. Country A says "we will charge only so much tariff duty to everybody. All are treated alike. But we can only use just so much of this commodity in a year, and we are going to take 35 per cent of this from Country B, 20 per cent from Country C, and the other 45 per cent parceled out the same way among the rest of the nations."

In other words, Country A will favor its friends and punish its enemies just as far as it can. Does that violate the most-favored-nation clause? Nobody knows. It still is an open question. Country B would say "certainly it does." It remains to be seen, but meanwhile the practice is spreading in Europe, and the United States, most disliked of nations, is getting most of the small quotas.

As long as the quotas were made to apply to typewriters and talkie films and things like that, American farmers would not particularly care, but nations are applying them to wheat and other farm commodities as well, and that is a horse of a different color. It looks as if our farm exports are in a fair way to be shut out of the world's markets entirely, because it is to the advantage of every importing country to avoid buying from us if they possibly can, and farm products can be bought from many other sources.

The war debts and commercial debts have upset the ordinary relations of our foreign trade, and every European country finds it necessary to sell us just as much as it can, and buy from us just as little as they can.

It is for this reason that efforts are being made to see whether we cannot trade reductions in the duties for specified quantities of farm exports. We cannot get any reductions in duties, under the most-favored-nation treaty clauses. But we could perhaps get the duties or nations to agree to give us big quotas of imports, in return for knocking off something from the war debt payments.

We seem to be entering a bargaining era. The new British tariffs are a sign of it. It is up to us and our statesmen and diplomats to see that our export commodities, farm as well as manufactured, get a fair break in the general scramble.

Do You Like People? They're All We Have We Must Get Along

Literature is glamorous; great music is uplifting; glorious sunsets may take your breath away—

But living breathing, suffering, laughing, pestiferous human beings are more important than all else.

You may fall asleep and dream; you may dig into your work and forget your troubles; you may take a long walk into the country to get away from your irritations—

But when you wake up, when you quit your work, on your way back from the walk, you will meet men and women again. If you expect to get along with yourself you must get along with people.

We aren't perfect—yet. But just at present we are the best in our line that nature has in stock. A dog is loyal. A cat is neat. An elephant is strong. A horse is decent. A tiger is brave. A song bird is cheerful.... They show their best sides to us, while man shows his good and his bad to his brothers and his enemies. But, good or bad, we must get along with men. We cannot live alone, and we know in our hearts that the most interesting creature in all the world is the Other Fellow. Not something we have read in a book, but somebody we know!

The family across the street is more exciting than the Julius Caesar who was assassinated in the Roman forum long ago. We want to know what broke up that seemingly happy family—we want to know how Jim made his money—we are curious about that bad boy we used to know and we wonder what ever did happen to him—we want to know about People.

Is Jane as sweet at home as she is at a party? How is Frank getting along? Why didn't Mary marry Tom? Should Edith go with Harry to Africa or should she stay at home until he makes his fortune? Isn't John drinking too much? Can anybody find Bill a job? Have you met George's pretty wife? Isn't it tough luck for Tim and Anne, losing their little boy like that?

Is our interest in other human beings just "vulgar curiosity?" Shouldn't we be more interested in great ideals, in high abstractions of life?

No, we shouldn't! Our business is to live with, to talk to, to be friendly with People.

We must get along with People and if we fail in that homely job, all other successes are hollow.

Yes, I know, I've heard about those great, lonely, remote geniuses who lived apart from man and thought noble thoughts, made great discoveries. But we are not geniuses, we are common men and women and we must Get Along With People.

Ailment May Be Anemia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"What would cause anemia and weakness in a man 52 years old? My gums bleed easily and that may be when I lost the blood. I live a healthy outdoor life, pretty much away from other people."

The age given is within the usual age period for pernicious anemia and that is the first disease which should be considered in his case. Fortunately, there is a difficulty not either with diagnosis or treatment in pernicious anemia. Any physician should be able to make the diagnosis within half an hour by an examination of the patient and a study of the blood: in only a small proportion of cases do any difficulties present themselves.

As to treatment, ten years ago not much hope could have been held out to the patient. But with the introduction of the liver diet a large proportion of all patients with the disease can be maintained in good health indefinitely.

This treatment is one of the four or five outstanding triumphs of American medicine, the discovery of two Boston physicians, Drs. Minot and Murphy, based on the experimental work of another American, Whipple.

Another form of anemia is suggested by the letter quoted above—the anemia of adult scurvy. It has been called "bachelor scurvy," because it occurs largely in men who live alone.

The disease is caused by a badly balanced diet. Men living alone are likely to do very little cooking for themselves and eat food prepared from flours and composed of food purchased at a store in a form ready to eat. "These diets," as a recent report states, "contain none of the foods rich in Vitamin C: i. e., vegetables, fruits and certain animal tissues."

Scurvy is fairly common in children and is often mistaken for rheumatism because of painful hemorrhages into the joints. In adults it used to be common in sailors when they were away on long voyages, until Captain Cook, who discovered New Zealand, kept his crew free from it by feeding them oranges and limes daily on a voyage round the world.

Sometimes invalids, who keep on a restricted diet a long time develop it. Thus a patient with a chronic diarrhea stayed on a milk and cracker diet for several years, and finally developed scurvy.

Deficiency of the essential food factors in very small amounts may induce scurvy and other food deficiency diseases in adults. They are probably much commoner than is generally suspected.

Don't Like Boy Friend

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What can the modern hero do if the folk of his girl friend object to him?

You remember the Young Loch-invar who came out of the west and snatched the bride away just as she was saying "I will" to the bridegroom of her parents' choice?

Of course the modern young lovers can elope if they love too much to give one another up, but these elopements sound much more romantic than they really are.

The couple usually has to come back and live in their former neighborhood, and if the parents of the girl don't like the man they can make it unpleasant. Sometimes they even succeed in estranging the young couple.

HEART BROKEN BUD loves a girl very much and she loves him. Her parents don't like him, and won't let him come to the house, so she has been meeting him elsewhere. Some troublemaker, according to him, carries stories about these meetings to the girl's parents, making things so unhappy for the girl that she has told Bud that, although she can't tell him so personally, because she would cry if she should try it, they must part. He wants to know what he should do.

Is there any chance of winning the girl's people over, Bud? What is it that they dislike about you? Why not go to the house, risk that "bawling out," and have a talk with her mother? Maybe by showing that you are a real man and not afraid to face whatever they may have to say to you, you could get them to withdraw their objections. If you and the girl friend love one another and want eventually to marry, much better get the goodwill of her parents.

H. E. L.: I haven't the young lady's real name and address, and never exchange them through this column when I do. Sorry I cannot oblige.

SUSIE: If you can now afford to send the gift, Susie, I think it would be lovely to do so. A plain card with an affectionate greeting written on it would be best.

Kinky Hair Not Pleasing

By GLADYS GLAD

The Parisian coiffure stylists have hinted that in the new hair styles, waves and curls are not going to be very much in evidence. Straight hair, they say, is far more youthful, and they are giving this fact a good deal of consideration in designing the latest coiffure fashions.

Personally, I do not think that it will be easy to induce women to give up their waves and ringlets. Curly hair is far too popular. And it usually does present an attractive appearance. But hair that is over-curled certainly too well. And often, both permanently-waved and naturally curly hair appear provokingly kinky.

Girls who have kinky hair often douse their heads with liquid brilliantine, in an attempt to flatten the waves. But this is usually not very effective, for most liquid brilliantines contain glycerine, which dries the hair and makes it seem kinkier than ever.

The best procedure for smoothing out kinky hair and making it waves appear soft and even is first to give the hair a hot oil treatment. The oil helps to overcome the dryness of the hair and flattens down the fuzzy little hairs that stick up all over the head. Then the hair should be thoroughly shampooed and a vinegar rinse used as the last rinse. This may be composed of half a glass of vinegar and a pint of clear water. The vinegar tends to soften the hair and overcomes to some extent its wiriness. After the shampoo remove most of the moisture from the hair and apply a heavy, waving lotion. Then fingerwave the hair in wide, loose waves and pin the waves securely. Permit the hair to dry thoroughly and then remove the pins and comb out the hair, pushing the waves into place with the fingers as you comb it.

If this procedure is followed each time that the hair is shampooed, a great deal of the kinkiness will be eliminated and the hair will eventually become trained to retain a smooth, even wave.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES. Cosmetics. Marcia: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge, light lipstick and dark brown eye-shadow cream would blend best with your coloring.

Legs. Mrs. T.: You can indeed fatten your legs, and make them more attractively shaped. The full instructions are contained in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs." They are too long to print here.

Breathing. B. T.: Breathing through the mouth usually denotes adenoidal trouble. Consult a competent physician, and permit him to thoroughly examine your nasal passages.

Prohibition Dominating Factor

By MRS. BELLE I. MOSKOWITZ
Social Service Worker and Adviser to Alfred E. Smith
(Mrs. Belle I. Moskowitz was born in New York City, October 5, 1877. She was a director of the amusements and exhibitions of the Educational Alliance from 1900 to 1903. She was a member of the staff of The Survey in 1908 and field secretary of the Playground and Recreation Association of America in 1912. Mrs. Moskowitz was secretary of the New York State Reconstruction Commission in 1919, and was secretary of the governor's labor board in 1921. She was vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and has been confidential political adviser to former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, who again is mentioned as a presidential candidate.)

Though economic conditions, and the enactments of congress to correct existing difficulties, may alter greatly the outlook between now and convention time, nothing, in my opinion, can possibly abate the importance of the prohibition issue.

The people will vote, not only for the party which provides the best economic solution for our problems, but with the party which has taken the soundest stand on the prohibition issue.

I consider that the most vital social and economic issue before the American people.

We have invested millions in trying to enforce the unenforceable. We have an outlaw industry which is making people tremendously rich and doing so without producing any revenue for the government. The moral effect of prohibition upon our young people and upon crime makes it a major social issue. It will probably be foremost, certainly in the mind of the average man.

I look upon the American electorate of 1932 as the most conscientious intelligent in the nation's history, thanks to the radio, which has enabled every little farm house to get an idea of issues and problems in government and partisan politics.

I do not believe that unemployment insurance should be the concern of federal authorities, except as the government at Washington assists in formulation of such programs by the various states. I do not, however, hold the federal government above consideration of emergency relief measures for meeting the needs of the people.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—People and things: Harlem is creeping downtown. I have mentioned the sepias of Greenwich Village. The Strollers, in West Fifty-first street, just off Broadway, offers a colored floor show and a dinner of fried chicken and yams.

The New Yorker hotel has installed individual radios in the kitchens so that chefs can relay orders to the stoves in a Bing Crosby croon instead of shouting them.

Roseland, the taxi dance hall, likes brunets when picking the young men provided as dance companions for lonely ladies. Few feminine patrons come in alone. It's usually a case of an odd girl on a party when the "hosts" are called into service.

Anita Murray, debutante daughter of the socially important Hugh E. Murray, appeared for the first time on the stage in "Collison," produced by Lew Gensler. She is beautiful, and being educated for grand opera.

Leon Gordon, the artist, tells me that if he could pick the attributes of a young painter, he'd give him consummate craftsmanship first—and let the fire of inspiration take care of its own lighting.

PARAGRAPHS FROM LITTLE ITEMS GROW—

Bebe Daniels, in the east between pictures for a radio singing engagement, wears red more spectacularly than anybody I can think of. Her coat suit trimmed in red fox explodes pleasantly upon the eye. She's slimmer and full of extravagant enthusiasm for the lowest rate that the other night.

Russell Patterson is now judging his 187th beauty contest. "Ziegfeld and Carroll are all well!" he insists. "The artists have the right idea about what a girl should look like. Down with make-up and trick lighting! Put a girl in a tub and scrub her. If she's still beautiful, then she's really beautiful."

Iceland, the skating emporium, has an oddly inevitable appeal for visiting southerners. When you hear a large thump it's usually a Louisiana learning how—but not this Louisiana!

Barbara Newberry, the girl Ziegfeld said had the most beautiful legs in the world, met her husband, Eddie Kay, Jr., at a penitentiary party the other night and decided he was a mighty nice guy, after all.

Add Minor Thrills: A lovely lady to whom I was complaining about the current vogue of red finger-nails confessed to me that her toes were tipped in bright blue!

PROMOTION WORK

Perhaps you've noticed the series of articles running in several magazines describing the adventures in Wall Street of daring "bears" and "bulls"—calculated to make stock and bond buying seem romantic and glamorous, induce readers to reinvest the contents of their socks and mattresses and heed recovery thereby. One of the threshold of anti-depression moves.

And while we're on the subject, a clerk in one of the Fourteenth street cut-price haberdasheries tells me that an increasing number of those large-size dollar bills, long since obsolete at the treasury, are drifting back into circulation—and some of them look brand-new!

CRITIC
The gentleman across the aisle from me the other night at a particularly inane opening chance to be Mr. Percy Hammond, the well-known drama clinician. Near the end of the second act I noticed that he was fidgeting in boredom. The play was almost unbelievably soporific. Mr. George Jean Nathan had long since departed and the other critics had followed him one by one.

Finally a brief survey revealed the fact that Hammond was the last of his tribe to remain. He was alone and not nailed down by a party as I was, and I wondered why he didn't slink away. Finally, liberated by the final curtain, I noticed that he was still in his seat. And I saw the reason why. He was asleep!

GESTURE

In "Weep No More," Ward Greene's new, best-selling novel, considerable mention is made of a village speakeasy for which he picked a characteristic name—Leo's. Now, my spies maintain, there are two such emporiums in the neighborhood described, and in both a new cocktail has been introduced, called the "Weep No More."

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

According to Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., it's bad form to thank your hostess at a party; you must drop by next day and leave a card. "If you're able to be out...." The prize racket of the season was contrived by that telescope concessionaire who turned his lens on a room where Greta Garbo was supposed to be ensconced here, and charged a quarter for a peek at a double he had hired to walk back and forth in front of the window.

Two new mags, both claiming "Bunk" for title, are scrapping over the label. "Lon Chaney still gets fan mail—more than many a name the press agents are pumping...." Helen Morgan had to stop singing for a week, after three hours on horseback. As what movement? A drug store in Lexington avenue serves afternoon tea gratis....

That the low price of strawberries generally this year is an end result of the Florida land boom, when thousands of acres were planted.

HIS HANDS ARE FULL ENOUGH AS IT IS!

NEWS NOTE: PRESIDENT DISCONTINUES HAND-SHAKING CUSTOM.

"MOST-FAVORED-NATION SYSTEM" HAS CHANGED WORLD IMPORT PLAN

By ARTHUR L. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

The newest stunt of the importing nations of Europe is to impose "quotas" on the exporting countries who are trying to sell their products abroad.

The old idea was for Country A to put a tariff duty of a certain amount on imports from Country B, and a duty twice as big on imports from Country C, thus giving the advantage to Country B. That practically came to an end when they began making trade treaties with the "most-favored-nation clause" in them, meaning that Country C was thereafter to get whatever was the lowest rate that Country A allowed to anybody.

All or nearly all the treaties we have with foreign nations call for "most-favored-nation" treatment, and it has done a good job for us in the past.

But this new quota system makes a totally new line-up. Country A says "we will charge only so much tariff duty to everybody. All are treated alike. But we can only use just so much of this commodity in a year, and we are going to take 35 per cent of this from Country B, 20 per cent from Country C, and the other 45 per cent parceled out the same way among the rest of the nations."

In other words, Country A will favor its friends and punish its enemies just as far as it can. Does that violate the most-favored-nation clause? Nobody knows. It still is an open question. Country B would say it does not, and Country C would say "certainly it does." It remains to be seen, but meanwhile the practice is spreading in Europe, and the United States, most disliked of nations, is getting most of the small quotas.

As long as the quotas were made to apply to typewriters and talkie films and things like that, American farmers would not particularly care, but nations are applying them to wheat and other farm commodities as well, and that is a horse of a different color. It looks as if our farm exports are in a fair way to be shut out of the world's markets entirely, because it is to the advantage of every importing country to avoid buying from us if they possibly can, and farm products can be bought from many other sources.

The war debts and commercial debts have upset the ordinary relations of our foreign trade, and every European country finds it necessary to sell us just as much as it can, and buy from us just as little as they can.

It is for this reason that efforts are being made to see whether we cannot trade reductions in the duties for specified quantities of farm exports. We cannot get any reductions in duties, under the most-favored-nation treaty clauses. But we could perhaps get the debtors to agree to give us big quotas of imports, in return for knocking off something from the war debt payments.

We seem to be entering a bargaining era. The new British tariffs are a sign of it. It is up to us and our statesmen and diplomats to see that our export commodities, farm as well as manufactured, get a fair break in the general scramble.

Ailment May Be Anemia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"What would cause anemia and weakness in a man 52 years old? My gums bleed easily and that may be when I lost the blood. I live a healthy outdoor life, pretty much away from other people."

The age given is within the usual age period for pernicious anemia and that is the first disease which should be considered in his case. Fortunately, there is a difficulty now with diagnosis or treatment in pernicious anemia. Any physician should be able to make the diagnosis within half an hour by an examination of the patient and a study of the blood; in only a small proportion of cases do any difficulties present themselves.

As to treatment, ten years ago not much hope could have been held out to the patient. But with the introduction of the liver diet a large proportion of all patients with the disease can be maintained in good health indefinitely. This treatment is one of the four or five outstanding triumphs of American medicine, the discovery of two Boston physicians, Dr. Minot and Murphy, based on the experimental work of another American, Whipple.

Scurvy is fairly common in children and is often mistaken for rheumatism because of painful hemorrhages into the joints. In adults it used to be common in sailors when they were away on long voyages, until Captain Cook, who discovered New Zealand, kept his crew free from it by feeding them oranges and limes daily on a voyage round the world.

Sometimes invalids who keep on a restricted diet a long time develop it. Thus a patient with a chronic diarrhea stayed on a milk and cracker diet for several years, and finally developed scurvy.

Deficiency of the essential food factors in very small amounts may induce scurvy and other food deficiency diseases in adults. They are probably much commoner than is generally suspected.

Don't Like Boy Friend

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What can the modern hero do if the folk of his girl friend object to him?

You remember the Young Lochinvar who came out of the west and snatched the bride away just as she was saying "I will" to the bridegroom of her parents' choice?

Of course the modern young lovers can elope if they love too much to give one another up, but these elopements sound much more romantic than they really are.

The couple usually has to come back and live in their former neighborhood, and if the parents of the girl don't like the man they can make it unpleasant. Sometimes they even may succeed in estranging the young couple.

HEART BROKEN Bud loves a girl very much and she loves him. Her parents don't like him, and won't let him come to the house, so she has been meeting him elsewhere. Some troublemaker, according to him, carries stories about these meetings to the girl's parents, making things so unhappy for the girl that she has told Bud that, although she can't tell him so personally, because she would cry if she should try it, they must part. He wants to know what he should do.

Is there any chance of winning the girl's people over, Bud? What is it that they dislike about you? Why not go to the house, risk that "bawling out," and have a talk with her mother? Maybe by showing that you are a real man and not afraid to face whatever they may have to say to you, you could get them to withdraw their objections. If you and the girl friend love one another and want eventually to marry, much better get the goodwill of her parents.

H. E. L.: I haven't the young lady's real name and address, and never exchange them through this column when I do. Sorry I cannot oblige.

Kinky Hair Not Pleasing

By GLADYS GLAD

The Parisian coiffure stylists have hinted that in the new hair styles, waves and curls are not going to be very much in evidence. Straight hair, they say, is far more youthful, and they are giving this fact a good deal of consideration in designing the latest coiffure fashions.

Personally, I do not think that it will be easy to induce women to give up their waves and ringlets. Curly hair is far too popular. And it usually does present an attractive appearance. But a hair that is curly certainly doesn't look any too well. And often, both permanently-waved and naturally curly hair appear provokingly kinky.

Girls who have kinky hair often douse their heads with liquid brillantines in an attempt to flatten the waves. But this is usually not very effective, for most liquid brillantines contain glycerine, which dries the hair and makes it seem stickier than ever.

The best procedure for smoothing out kinky hair and making the waves appear soft and even is first to give the hair a hot oil treatment. The oil helps to overcome the dryness of the hair and flattens down the fuzzy little hairs that stick up all over the head. Then the hair should be thoroughly shampooed and a vinegar rinse used as the last rinse. This may be composed of half a glass of vinegar and a pint of clear water. The vinegar tends to soften the hair and overcomes to some extent, its wiriness.

After the shampoo remove most of the moisture from the hair and apply a heavy, waving lotion. Then fingerwave the hair in wide, loose waves and pin the waves securely. Permit the hair to dry thoroughly and then remove the pins and gently comb out the hair, pushing the waves into place with the fingers as you comb it.

If this procedure is followed each time that the hair is shampooed, a great deal of the kinkiness will be eliminated and the hair will eventually become trained to retain a smooth, even wave.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

Like a bubble that is pricked with a pin, or a flickering light suddenly extinguished by a puff of wind, so the rather belated attempt to drum up a basketball game between Xenia Central and Ross Twp. quintets has expired in infancy.

As was more or less to be expected, Coach A. F. Roush, of Ross High, to whom the proposal was casually mentioned Monday, said he would not think of challenging Bucaneros to a post-season contest this week.

Roush wants his players to conserve their energies for the county tournament this week-end because, although he expects them to retain the title, he is looking forward to plenty of opposition and three strenuous games.

Once past the county tourney obstacle, the Ross mentor thinks his unbeaten team, winner of seventeen straight games, ought to progress far in the regional Class B state tournament at Wilmington. In his opinion the caliber of the teams that will compete at Wilmington, will not be as formidable as would be encountered if the Greene County representatives were scheduled to play in the regional at Springfield, as in past years.

Returning to the suggestion that a game be arranged between Xenia and Ross, Coach Roush declares that a standing invitation to Central High schedule-makers to book Ross as the season's first opponent for Xenia has existed for some years past, but the offer has never been accepted. Instead, Xenia has turned down Ross' overtures in favor of Leesburg and Waynesville in recent years, he claims.

Looking at the matter from Xenia Central's angle, however, the high school, if it has been stepping Ross for its season's opener, has shown common sense. Smaller schools, like Ross for example, not having football teams, are enabled to start their basketball seasons some weeks in advance. They have a head start on the Class A schools, whose athletes experience a long football grind, and then plunge into basketball early in December.

By that time the Class B cage teams have nearly arrived at their peak form. Xenia Central court teams open their seasons after less than two weeks of practice, during which time the basketball candidates, a majority of whom usually play football, have had insufficient time to get accustomed to the change of sports.

That is why Xenia ordinarily is extended to the limit to win from a smaller school in its first season's opener. Xenia has experienced the utmost difficulty beating Leesburg and Waynesville, whereas, if these teams were met later in the season, Xenia's margin of victory would invariably be substantial.

Ross High, represented by singularly strong teams in recent years, would doubtless have given the Bucs a sound drugging each time had the two teams clashed in the season's openers for Xenia in the last few years.

Possibly, if Xenia and Ross should suffer elimination in the regional state tournaments March 4 and 5, and unless the members of the two teams want to disband at once, a renewed attempt might be made to arrange the much-discussed contest the week following.

This department wonders if much public sentiment for such a game actually exists. If so, it is being carefully concealed, inasmuch as a solitary letter from one unidentified fan so far represents the sum total of agitation we have heard expressed. It would be just a bit foolish to arrange the game for this lone Xenia fan's benefit. How are we to know that he would attend so as to give advance assurance that at least one individual is sufficiently interested to be present?

of equal opportunity for their Eastern trade, but also against the military aggrandizement of any other power at the expense of China.

"On cannot discuss the possibility of modifying or abrogating those positions of the nine power treaty without considering at the same time the other promises upon which they were really dependent."

Stimson said that six years after the signing of these treaties the Kellogg anti-war pact had come in to being to reinforce the treaty signed at Washington. These treaties had for their purpose, he said, the aligning of public opinion and conscience of the world in favor of a system of orderly development by the law of nations, including the settlement of all controversies by methods of justice and peace, instead of arbitrary force.

"The program for the protection of China from outside aggression is an essential part of any such development," he declared.

"The recent events which have taken place in China, especially the hostilities which have been begun in Manchuria have latterly been extended to Shanghai, far from indicating the advisability of any modification of the treaties we have been discussing, have tended to bring home the vital importance of the faithful observance of the covenants therein to all of the nations interested in the Far East.

"It is not necessary in that connection to inquire into the causes of the controversy or attempt to apportion the blame between the two nations which are unhappily involved; for regardless of cause or responsibility, it is clear beyond per adventure that a situation has developed which cannot, under any circumstances, be reconciled with the obligations of the covenants of these two treaties, and that if the treaties had been faithfully observed such a situation could not have arisen.

"The signatories of the nine power treaty and of the Kellogg-Briand pact who are not parties to that conflict are not likely to see any reason for modifying the terms of those treaties. To them the real value of the faithful performance of those treaties has been brought sharply home by the perils and losses to which their nationals have been subjected in Shanghai.

"That is the view of this government. We see no reason for abandoning the enlightened principles which are embodied in these treaties. We believe that this situation would have been avoided and these covenants been faithfully observed, and no evidence has come to us to indicate that a new compliance with them would have resulted in the adequate protection of the legitimate rights in China of the signatories of those treaties and their nationals."

Stimson indirectly appealed to other world powers to support the American position.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24.—A delegation of Chinese military leaders called at the American consulate here today and formally announced the death of Robert M. Short, American aviator, who was killed in an air duel with a fleet of Japanese airplanes on Monday.

The delegation made cautious inquiries to determine whether there would be any official American objection to Short's participation with the Chinese air force or to an official Chinese statement of appreciation of the flier's courageous battle against hopeless odds.

These Chinese also suggested a monetary gift to Short's family as a token of sympathy. The American authorities here had no objection to such procedure.

Short's body, lying in a Chinese coffin, remained in the hands of Chinese authorities at Soochow, near where he was shot down after attacking the Japanese fleet while they were on a reconnaissance flight over the Shanghai-Soochow railway. It is expected to be turned over to an undertaking establishment in the international settlement when necessary formalities have been completed.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 24.—The trial of Grover W. Fleming of Urbana, editor of the Ohio Examiner, on charges of circulating a false rumor about a national bank, was postponed until May 3 in municipal court today when the defense said one of its principal witnesses is now in Florida.

Judge Fred A. Wagner allowed the delay following a conference behind closed doors with attorneys for the state and the defense. The Clark County grand jury last week refused to indict Fleming on similar charges, although he still must answer the accusation in municipal court.

NOT ENOUGH SHOES TO GO AROUND

"Baby" is not the only member of the family who needs a new pair of shoes in Greene County.

At least that's the way it looked Tuesday to Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, county public health nurse, and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, assistant probation officer.

With a consignment of forty-eight pairs of children's new shoes, dispatched to this county by Governor White's unemployment relief committee, available for distribution to needy boys and girls, it developed that the demand was nearly ten times greater than the supply.

New footwear was being distributed Tuesday and Wednesday among school children by Mrs. Wittenmyer and Mrs. Anderson, in the office of County Commissioners.

As an example of the great need existing throughout the county among children for new shoes, it was explained that one school district made a requisition for twenty-three pairs, and received only five. Some of the districts did not get a single pair. There were not enough shoes to go around.

SETS NEW RECORD

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

Like a bubble that is pricked with a pin, or a flickering light suddenly extinguished by a puff of wind, so the rather belated attempt to drum up a basketball game between Xenia Central and Ross Twp. quintets has expired in infancy.

As was more or less to be expected, Coach A. F. Roush, of Ross High, to whom the proposal was casually mentioned Monday, said he would not think of challenging the Buccaneers to a post-season contest this week.

Roush wants his players to conserve their energies for the county tournament this week-end because, although he expects them to retain the title, he is looking forward to plenty of opposition and three strenuous games.

Once past the county tourney obstacle, the Ross mentor thinks his unbeaten team, winner of seventeen straight games, ought to progress far in the regional Class B state tournament at Wilmington. In his opinion the caliber of the teams that will compete at Wilmington, will not be as formidable as would be encountered if the Greene County representatives were scheduled to play in the regional at Springfield, as in past years.

Returning to the suggestion that a game be arranged between Xenia and Ross, Coach Roush declares that a standing invitation to Central High schedule-makers to book Ross as the season's first opponent for Xenia has existed for some years past, but the offer has never been accepted. Instead, Xenia has turned down Ross' overtures in favor of Leesburg and Waynesville in recent years, he claims.

Looking at the matter from Xenia Central's angle, however, the high school, if it has been side-stepping Ross for its season's opener, has shown common sense. Smaller schools, like Ross for example, not having football teams, are enabled to start their basketball seasons some weeks in advance. They have a head start on the Class A schools, whose athletes experience a long football grind, and then plunge into basketball early in December.

By that time the Class B cage teams have nearly arrived at their peak form. Xenia Central county teams open their seasons after less than two weeks of practice, during which time the basketball candidates, a majority of whom usually play football, have had insufficient time to get accustomed to the change of sports.

That is why Xenia ordinarily is extended to the limit to win from a smaller school in its first game. Buccaneers teams have experienced the utmost difficulty beating Leesburg and Waynesville, whereas, if these teams were met later in the season, Xenia's margin of victory would invariably be substantial.

Ross High, represented by singularly strong teams in recent years, would doubtless have given the Bucs a sound drugging each time had the two teams clashed in the season's openers for Xenia in the last few years.

Possibly, if Xenia and Ross should suffer elimination in the regional state tournaments March 4 and 5, and unless the members of the two teams want to disband at once, a renewed attempt might be made to arrange the much-discussed contest the week following.

This department wonders if much public sentiment for such a game actually exists. If so, it is being carefully concealed, inasmuch as a solitary letter from one unidentified fan so far represents the sum total of agitation we have heard expressed. It would be just a bit foolish to arrange the game for this lone Xenia fan's benefit. How are we to know that he would attend so as to give advance assurance that at least one individual is sufficiently interested to be present?

Losing two out of three games to the league-leading Red Wings in a Recreation League bowling match Tuesday night, the Famous Autos passed up a chance to take undisputed possession of second place. Jess Anderson had another fine series of 644 for the Red Wings, rolling games of 189, 212 and 243. Box score:

of equal opportunity for their Eastern trade, but also against the military aggrandizement of any other power at the expense of China.

"On cannot discuss the possibility of modifying or abrogating those positions of the nine power treaty without considering at the same time the other promises upon which they were really dependent."

Stimson said that six years after the signing of these treaties the Kellogg anti-war pact had come into being to reinforce the treaty signed at Washington. These treaties had for their purpose, he said, the aligning of public opinion and conscience of the world in favor of a system of orderly development by the law of nations, including the settlement of all controversies by methods of justice and peace, instead of arbitrary force.

"The program for the protection of China from outside aggression is an essential part of any such development," he declared.

"The recent events which have taken place in China, especially the hostilities which have begun in Manchuria have latterly been extended to Shanghai, far from indicating the advisability of any modification of the treaties we have been discussing, have tended to bring home the vital importance of the faithful observance of the covenants therein to all of the nations interested in the Far East."

"It is not necessary in that connection to inquire into the causes of the controversy or attempt to apportion the blame between the two nations which are unhappily involved; for regardless of cause or responsibility, it is clear beyond per adventure that a situation has developed which cannot, under any circumstances, be reconciled with the obligations of the covenants of these two treaties, and that if the treaties had been faithfully observed such a situation could not have arisen."

"The signatories of the nine power treaty and of the Kellogg-Briand pact who are not parties to that conflict are not likely to see any reason for modifying the terms of those treaties. To them the real value of the faithful performance of those treaties has been brought sharply home by the perils and losses to which their nationals have been subjected in Shanghai."

"That is the view of this government. We see no reason for abandoning the enlightened principles which are embodied in these treaties. We believe that this situation would have been avoided and these covenants been faithfully observed, and no evidence has come to us to indicate that a new compact with them would have interfered with the adequate protection of the legitimate rights in China of the signatories of those treaties and their nationals."

Stimson indirectly appealed to other world powers to support the American position.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24.—A delegation of Chinese military leaders called at the American consulate here today and formally announced the death of Robert M. Short, American aviator, who was killed in an air duel with a fleet of Japanese airplanes on Monday.

The delegation made cautious inquiries to determine whether there would be any official American objection to Short's participation with the Chinese air force or to an official Chinese statement of appreciation of the flier's courageous battle against hopeless odds.

These Chinese also suggested a monetary gift to Short's family as a token of esteem, provided the American authorities here had no objection to such procedure.

Short's body, lying in a Chinese coffin, remained in the hands of Chinese authorities at Soochow, near where he was shot down after attacking the Japanese fleet while they were on a reconnaissance flight over the Shanghai-Soochow railway. It is expected to be turned over to an undertaking establishment in the international settlement when necessary formalities have been completed.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN

AT LAST came a day when Sullivan and his manager, Billy Madden, could no longer tolerate each other. There was a terrible quarrel and the pair parted company. Having tutored John L. from the days when he was a raw amateur, Madden believed he had been treated shamefully by the new champion, so he went to England, still the center of pugilism, to look for a man who could dethrone the king he had raised.

CHARLIE MITCHELL

Madden Finds Mitchell

IN LONDON he saw a young fighter named Charlie Mitchell, who was an artist at boxing. Madden arranged a tournament in London, the winner to become the logical contender. As Madden hoped, Mitchell won the tournament and so Billy brought him to America. They issued a challenge to John L. in March, 1883, and Sullivan surprised his old pal and friend by immediately accepting. The bout was set for May 14.

Police Stopping Bout

THE BOUT lasted but three rounds. Sullivan had the best of it most of the way, though Mitchell scored a knockdown in the second round when John L. tripped over his own feet. The Britisher outboxed John L., but the champion was slamming Mitchell all over the ring when Captain Alex Williams and Inspector Thorne stepped into the ring and stopped the fight. Both fighters were greatly disappointed and protested bitterly.

Crowd Heckling John L.

THE PUBLIC thought Mitchell was having the best of it when the fight was stopped. On Broadway, Sullivan was the object of hoots and jeers. Enraged, Sullivan offered to bet anyone he could stand on a handkerchief, permit Mitchell to hit him 12 times and that he would not be knocked from his position. This was laughed at—but there were no takers.

POSTPONE TRIAL OF GROVER FLEMING

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 24.—The trial of Grover W. Fleming of Urbana, editor of the Ohio Examiner, on charges of circulating a false rumor about a national bank, was postponed until May 3 in municipal court today when the defense said one of its principal witnesses is now in Florida.

Judge Fred A. Wagner allowed the delay following a conference behind closed doors with attorneys for the state and the defense. The Clark County grand jury last week refused to indict Fleming on similar charges, although he still must answer the accusation in municipal court.

NOT ENOUGH SHOES TO GO AROUND

"Baby" is not the only member of the family who needs a new pair of shoes in Greene County. At least that's the way it looked Tuesday to Mrs. Pearl Whittenmyer, county public health nurse, and Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, assistant probation officer.

With a consignment of forty-eight pairs of children's new shoes, dispatched to this county by Governor White's unemployment relief committee, available for distribution to needy boys and girls, it developed that the demand was nearly ten times greater than the supply.

New footwear was being distributed Tuesday and Wednesday among school children by Mrs. Whittenmyer and Mrs. Anderson, in the office of County Commissioners. As an example of the great need existing throughout the county among children for new shoes, it was explained that one school district made a requisition for twenty-three pairs, and received only five. Some of the districts did not get a single pair. There were not enough shoes to go around.

Barthelmess To Tell Movie Secrets On Air

By MILDRED MASIN

Richard Barthelmess, well-known screen star, will explain how everything from entire villages to whales are manufactured in the technical department of a movie studio when he is heard in the weekly Radio News-reel of Hollywood broadcast over station WLW, Cincinnati, Thursday at 6:30 p. m. he will tell how the glass windows that film stars jump through without receiving so much as a scratch are kept on ice until they are used—that is, because they are made out of sugar and water.

The technical department provides among other things, rain and fog and snow, which is made of salt, sand and cornflakes. They make bottles as thin as egg shells, revolvers of rubber and three kinds of cakes, plaster of Paris ones to be seen, real ones to be eaten and spongy ones, which smear easily, to be thrown. Barthelmess will explain all of these interesting facts and many others in his broadcast Thursday.

Substitutes for Vallee.

Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees will be absent at the time of their regular broadcast Thursday evening and in their place Russell Bennett and his orchestra will broadcast over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 8 p. m. In addition there will be Ross MacLean, now appearing in the "Scandals," who will sing; little Sylvia Froos, the "Little Princess of Song" and the Men About Town quartet. Vallee is enjoying a brief vacation in California.

Present Varied Program.

A solo, the gypsy love song, "Zigener" from the operetta, "Bittersweet," sung by Lanny Ross, a ballad sung by the Songsmiths quartet, dance music by Dan Voochess orchestra in addition to a talk by Miss Katherine Fisher, widely known home economist and director of the Good Housekeeping Institute, will be features on a program to be broadcast over an NBC network through WLW, Cincinnati, Thursday at 9:30 p. m.

To Present Dickens' Works.

Scenes from the works of Charles Dickens will be presented at 10:45 p. m. over WOKY Thursday by Alfred Shirley, English actor, who is especially famed for his impersonations of Dickens' characters.

Did You Know

Little Jack Little, formerly with NBC, has now signed with Columbia and will be heard over that network in the near future. . . . Phillips H. Lord, author of "Sunday Night at Seth Parker's" is now a Kentucky colonel. . . . Ezra McClure is the youngest NBC announcer on the air. He is only 23 and has been announcing for four years—Singin' Sam, heard over station WKRC, Cincinnati, three times a week, is getting offers from the talkies. . . . Edward A. Byron, WLW production manager, has been ill with influenza, but is now improving—Lowell Patton, heard over the NBC network in "A Song for Today," says he enjoys prowling in the Bowers of

Barthelmess To Tell Movie Secrets On Air

By MILDRED MASIN

Richard Barthelmess, well-known screen star, will explain how everything from entire villages to whales are manufactured in the technical department of a movie studio when he is heard in the weekly Radio News- reel of Hollywood broadcast over station WLW, Cincinnati, Thursday at 6:30 p. m. he will tell how the glass windows that film stars jump through without receiving so much as a scratch are kept on ice until they are used—that is, because they are made out of sugar and water.

The technical department provides among other things, rain and fog and snow, which is made of salt, sand and cornflakes. They make bottles as thin as egg shells, revolvers of rubber and three kinds of cakes, plaster of Paris ones to be seen, real ones to be eaten and spongy ones, which smear easily, to be thrown. Barthelmess will explain all of these interesting facts and many others in his broadcast Thursday.

Substitutes for Vallee.

Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees will be absent at the time of their regular broadcast Thursday evening and in their place Russell Bennett and his orchestra will broadcast over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 8 p. m. In addition there will be Ross MacLean, now appearing in the "Scandals," who will sing; Little Sylvia Froos, the "little princess of song" and the Men About Town quartet, Vallee is enjoying a brief vacation in California.

Present Varied Program.

A solo, the gypsy love song, "Zigener" from the opera, "Bittersweet," sung by Larry Ross, tenor, a ballad sung by the Songsmiths quartet, dance music by Dan Voorhees orchestra in addition to a talk by Miss Katherine Fisher, widely known home economist and director of the Good Housekeeping Institute, will be featured on a program to be broadcast over an NBC network through WLW, Cincinnati, Thursday at 9:30 p. m.

To Present Dickens Works.

Scenes from the works of Charles Dickens will be presented at 10:45 a. m. over WCKY Thursday by Alfred Shirley, English actor, who is especially famed for his impersonations of Dickens' characters.

MODERN YOUTH DEFENDED BY EDUCATORS HERE ON TUESDAY

Modern youth was defended in a discussion that developed into one of the high spots of the eighteenth annual meeting of members of Greene County village and township boards of education in the Court House assembly room Tuesday.

"Boys and girls of today are as good or even better than the youth of a generation ago," asserted D. A. Magruder, an Antioch College professor and a member of the joint Yellow Springs-Miami Twp. school board.

Not only that but they are franker, more honest, the Antioch professor said. "They do not hesitate to discuss matters considered taboo in public a generation ago, but which, nevertheless, they had in mind."

Another spokesman on the same subject expressed his belief that facilities modern schools provide by way of athletics, music and other diversions help to keep down temptations by furnishing other interests.

Opinion was also canvassed on the question of corporal punishment and the resultant discussion found opinion divided on the subject.

Board members generally went on record with an expression of approval regarding the method of distribution of the 2.55 mills.

A variety of other subjects was discussed informally, including questions of finances, length of the school year, vacation periods, date for opening schools, county athletic program and county-wide salary schedules. Formal action was not taken on any of the matters.

Two school districts reported they were almost certain of operating a full nine-months' school year, while the remainder were not so sure. Jefferson Twp. and Beaver Creek Twp. schools are expected to run the complete term. Six other districts that depend upon state financial aid were not in a position to say definitely or whether it may be necessary to shorten their terms to eight months.

Greene County, in the belief of H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, has fewer school districts than any other of Ohio's eighty-eight counties. All of the twelve rural school district boards of education in the county, including the county board, were represented at the yearly session and nearly all of the sixty board members were present.

An entertaining musical program was presented in conjunction with the meeting. A boys' quartet from the Bowersville schools, a colored girls' quartet from Jamestown High School, and an orchestra consisting of pupils of Spring Valley, Jamestown and Bowersville schools, under the direction of Miss Donna Claire Sheley, Jamestown, supplied the music.

The motion asserts that Mrs. Liming had made the statement to various persons that her husband had been promised immunity by Prosecuting Attorney Marcus McCallister if she would testify for the state at Malotte's trial.

Affidavits in support of this charge will be filed as soon as they can be obtained, counsel said. It is claimed that the residence of one of the affiants is in Iowa and that it will take several days for the affidavit to reach him, he signed and returned.

Mrs. Liming, whose husband recently changed his plea to guilty, and asked for a parole, was one of the chief state witnesses at Malotte's trial and also that of Ralph Morrow, owner of the Osborn Hotel, first of the six suspects convicted.

During cross-examination at Malotte's trial, she angrily denied a suggestion of Attorney Johnson that her husband had been guaranteed immunity in return for her testimony for the state.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy has not indicated when he expects to dispose of the cases of five of the six men indicted for the Monnett robbery, three of whom have withdrawn not guilty pleas. He has also not ruled upon motions for new trials for Morrow and Malotte.

SPECIAL SERVICE HELD ON BIRTHDAY

A special service held Monday by the Xenia Christian Science Society as a part of the nation-wide celebration of the George Washington bi-centennial, included an address on George Washington by the first reader.

"Among all men who have attained to an equal degree of prominence, George Washington is one of comparatively few whose public and private lives are conspicuous for the presence of right and the absence of wrong," it was said.

A lesson-sermon prepared especially for the service was read by the first and second readers and a correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, was also read. A solo, "Unfolding Faith," was read and the service closed with the benediction from Romans 15:5, 6.

TO INSPECT LODGE

Annual inspection of Xenia Chapter, No. 36, R. A. M., will be conducted by George E. Whiteley, Lancaster, at a special convocation at 7 p. m. Thursday at Masonic Temple. The Royal Arch degree will be conferred on candidates and the convocation will be preceded by a dinner, served by Jacob Kany, at 5:30 o'clock.

EDUCATOR HEARD AT ANTIOCH ASSEMBLY

"Caribbean peoples resent tremendously American interference in their affairs," declared Dr. Nellie M. Seeds, director of Manumit School, Pawling, New York, before the assembly of Antioch College Monday. Dr. Seeds, who returned recently to the United States after visiting Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Panama, described present conditions there.

The speaker outlined the following possibilities for American policy in the Caribbean: (1) a "hands off" plan which would allow those peoples to work out their own salvation; (2) a "strong arm" policy, by means of which it would be possible for Americans to build roads, schools, and hospitals, to establish courts, and to set up industries; (3) a "sweet reasonableness," by which we could send political missionaries to convince the Caribbean that the American way of doing things is best; and (4) a combination of "pressure and progress" under which the Americans would handle finances while the government and industries of a country remained in the hands of their own people.

DAIRY FARMS ARE VISITED BY GROUP

A delegation composed of twenty members of the Madison, Darby and Westerville Cow Testing Association made an inspection tour of dairy farms in Greene, Madison and Clark Counties Tuesday.

In the morning one of three farms visited was that of O. E. Hartley, R. R. No. 1, Osborn, and in the afternoon the herds on two farms, including that of Alexander and Trout at Spring Valley, were inspected.

FIRST PRE-EASTER SERVICE PLANNED

The Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, will preach at the first of a series of pre-Easter services arranged by four churches of the city at the Presbyterian Church, Market and King Sts., Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Churches taking part in the series are the Presbyterian, the First Reformed, the First M. E., and the First Lutheran. Churches where the services will be held each week will be announced later.

MODERN YOUTH DEFENDED BY EDUCATORS HERE ON TUESDAY

Modern youth was defended in a discussion that developed into one of the high spots of the eighteenth annual meeting of members of Greene County village and township boards of education in the Court House assembly room Tuesday.

"Boys and girls of today are as good or even better than the youth of a generation ago," asserted D. A. Magruder, an Antioch College professor and a member of the joint Yellow Springs-Miami Twp. school board.

Not only that but they are franker, more honest, the Antioch professor said. "They do not hesitate to discuss matters considered taboo in public a generation ago, but which, nevertheless, they had in mind."

Another spokesman on the same

subject expressed his belief that facilities modern schools provide by way of athletics, music and other diversions help to keep down temptations by furnishing other interests.

Opinion was also canvassed on the question of corporal punishment for unruly school children and the resultant discussion found opinion divided on the subject. Board members generally went on record with an expression of approval regarding the method of re-distribution of the 2.55 mills.

A variety of other subjects was discussed informally, including questions of finances, length of the school year, vacation periods, date for opening schools, county athletic program and county-wide salary schedules. Formal action was not taken on any of the matters.

Two school districts reported they were almost certain of operating a full nine-months' school year, while the remainder were not so sure. Jefferson Twp. and Beaver Creek Twp. schools are expected to run the complete term. Six other districts that depend upon state financial aid were not in a position to say definitely or whether it may be necessary to shorten their terms to eight months.

Greene County, in the belief of H. C. Aultman, county superintendent, has fewer school districts than any other of Ohio's eighty-eight counties. All of the twelve rural school district boards of education in the county, including the county board, were represented at the yearly session and nearly all of the sixty board members were present.

An entertaining musical program was presented in conjunction with the meeting. A boys' quartet from the Bowersville schools, a colored girls' quartet from Jamestown High School, and an orchestra consisting of pupils of Spring Valley, Jamestown and Bowersville schools, under the direction of Miss Donna Claire Sholey, Jamestown, supplied the music.

LITTLE THEATER TO GIVE PLAY MARCH 3

"Green Stockings," a three act comedy by A. E. W. Mason, will be presented here by the Xenia Little Theater at the Opera House Thursday evening, March 3, at 8:15 o'clock. It was announced Wednesday. The play is the third in a series of four plays to be presented by the local theatrical group this season.

The cast is rehearsing for the play nightly and several newcomers in the Little Theater's productions will make their appearance in "Green Stockings." A special feature between the first and second acts will be a song, "Barney McCoy," sung by Patricia Ann and Larry Farrell, members of the Junior Music Club and children of Mrs. Katherine Farrell.

COUNTY SURVEYOR DAVIS ENTERS RACE

W. J. Davis, Xenia, seeking re-nomination on the Republican ticket and reelection for another term as surveyor of Greene County, has filed his declaration of candidacy with the board of elections. Nominating petition of S. F. McKnight, 516 E. Second St., as a candidate for membership on the Greene County Republican Central Committee from the fourth ward of Xenia, has also been filed with the board.

EDUCATOR HEARD AT ANTIOCH ASSEMBLY

"Caribbean peoples resent tremendously American interference in their affairs," declared Dr. Neill M. Seeds, director of Mammoth School, Pawling, New York, before the assembly of Antioch College Monday. Dr. Seeds, who returned recently to the United States after visiting Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Panama, described present conditions there.

The speaker outlined the following possibilities for American policy in the Caribbean: (1) a "hands off" plan which would allow those peoples to work out their own salvation; (2) a "strong arm" policy, by means of which it would be possible for Americans to build roads, schools, and hospitals, to establish courts, and to set up industries; (3) a "sweet reasonableness," by which we could send political missionaries to convince the Caribbean that the American way of doing things is best; and (4) a combination of "pressure and progress" under which the Americans would handle finances while the government and industries of a country remained in the hands of her own people.

DAIRY FARMS ARE VISITED BY GROUP

A delegation composed of twenty members of the Madison, Darby and Westerville Cow Testing Association made an inspection tour of dairy farms in Greene, Madison and Clark Counties Tuesday.

In the morning one of three farms visited was that of O. E. Hartley, R. R. No. 1, Osborn, and in the afternoon the herds on two farms, including that of Alexander and Trout at Spring Valley, were inspected.
